

Answers on the back.

computer vocabulary

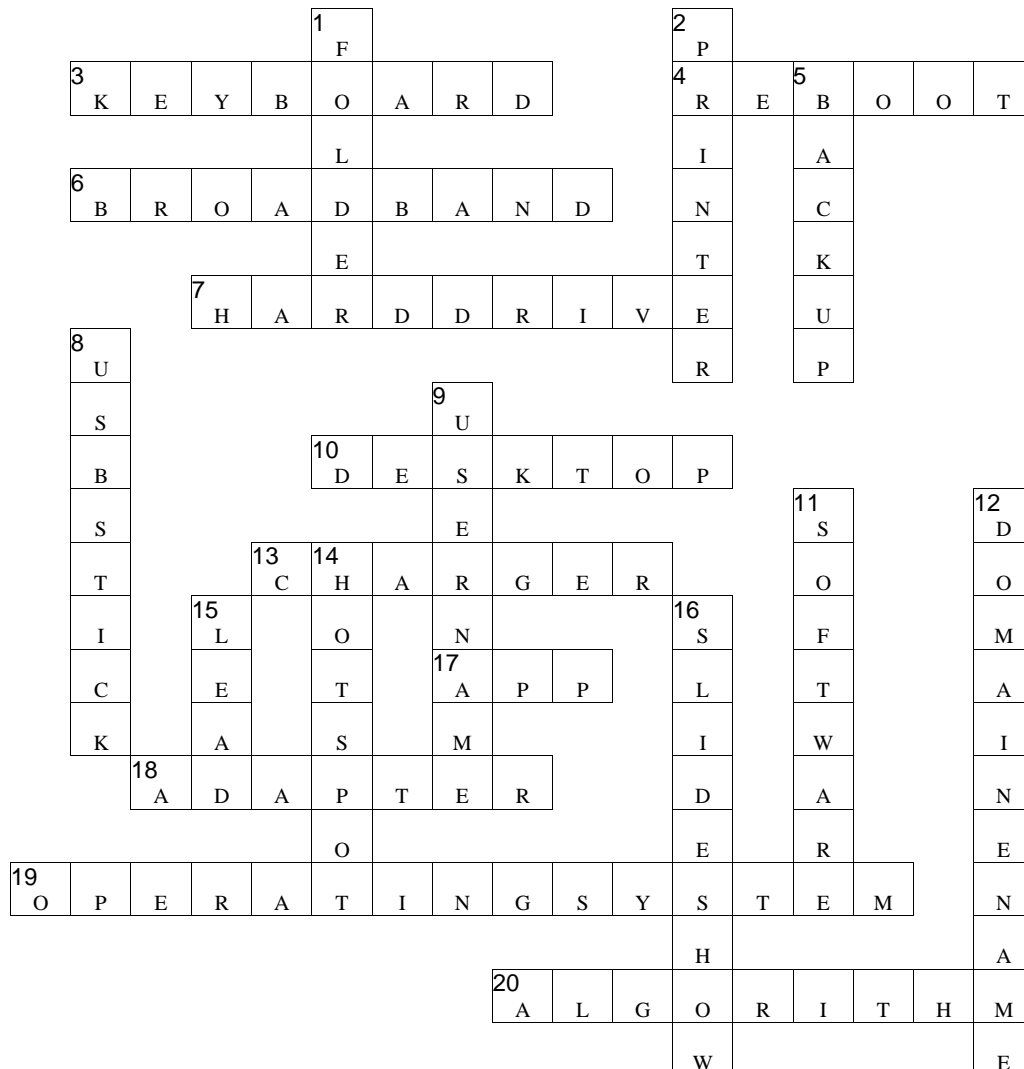

Across

3. Used to type and enter information into a computer.
4. Restart a computer.
6. High-capacity Internet transmission capacity.
7. Part of computer that stores most information.
10. The computer screen which comes up when a computer is turned on and which displays icons for main programmes.
13. Used to recharge batteries.
17. Smartphone programme for most activities.
18. Device used to convert a plug.
19. The programme which makes a computer work.
20. A process or set of rules used in calculations or problem solving.

Down

1. A space used to store a set of files.
2. Machine for making paper copies of texts.
5. A safeguard of a file.
8. Small, highly portable device used to store information, data, etc.
9. Identity required to enter a system of closed website.
11. All programmes and digitised materials needed to run IT systems.
12. An Internet label, address.
14. A wifi outlet.
15. A piece of wire used as a connection.
16. A set of images often used to accompany a presentation.

computer vocabulary

Across

3. Used to type and enter information into a computer.
4. Restart a computer.
6. High-capacity Internet transmission capacity.
7. Part of computer that stores most information.
10. The computer screen which comes up when a computer is turned on and which displays icons for main programmes.
13. Used to recharge batteries.
17. Smartphone programme for most activities.
18. Device used to convert a plug.
19. The programme which makes a computer work.
20. A process or set of rules used in calculations or problem solving.

Down

1. A space used to store a set of files.
2. Machine for making paper copies of texts.
5. A safeguard of a file.
8. Small, highly portable device used to store information, data, etc.
9. Identity required to enter a system of closed website.
11. All programmes and digitised materials needed to run IT systems.
12. An Internet label, address.
14. A wifi outlet.
15. A piece of wire used as a connection.
16. A set of images often used to accompany a presentation.